

I understand that the FCC is considering initiating regulations on implementing the Telephone Consumer Protection Act. As a resident of Indiana, I would like to go on record as saying how well this State's Telephone Privacy law has worked. Prior to the law my family received between two to four calls per evening; we now receive none. My home has become a home again, free of the persistent intrusion that once existed. Prior to implementation of the State law at the beginning of the year, I tried and tried to get on DNC lists from those organizations making contact with me. Very few of these groups actually respected my wishes. Please do not invoke any rules that would in any way weaken Indiana's law. This is a fine piece of legislation that works.

Thank you.
